2022-23 war memorial theft, vandalism and anti-social behaviour cases

War Memorials Trust

Date: 3rd July 2023
Status: Immediate release

Starts

War Memorials Trust is pleased to report that levels of theft, vandalism and other forms of anti-social behaviour directed at war memorials fell in 2022-23. 0.03% of war memorials in the UK are believed to have been subject to such problems, based on the data available to the charity.

In 2022-23, incidents of anti-social behaviour, graffiti and theft fell, with just 18 reported compared to 33 in 2021-22. However, reports of vandalism increased from 8 to 11.

Any such case like this is appalling. It causes significant upset for individuals and within communities. All efforts should be made to minimise the risk of this occurring. However, it is important to recognise that these events are few and far between reflecting how the estimated 100,000 war memorials across the UK are wonderfully well-cared for by the communities who remain responsible for them. The attention such cases attract reflects their rareness and the outrage they cause.

War Memorials Trust can provide advice, guidance and potentially grant funding, to those impacted by such incidents. Dealing with the results of such attacks inappropriately can cause further damage so the Trust highlights the importance of obtaining professional advice. In some cases, like damage from by vehicles, remedial action can covered by insurance.

	Total incidents	Number and % involving the following issues (some may include more than one element)
		Anti-social behaviour	Graffiti	Attempted Theft	Theft	Vandalism
2019-20	34	9 (25%)	12 (33%)	1 (3%)	3 (8%)	11 (31%)
2020-21	38	10 (26%)	18 (47%)	0	4 (11%)	16 (42%)
2021-22	39	18 (46%)	13 (33%)	0	2 (5%)	8 (21%)
2022-23	29	7 (24%)	10 (34%)	0	1 (3%)	11 (38%)

Custodians can be proactive in deterring theft by ensuring their war memorial is protected with SmartWater available free of charge through In Memoriam 2014. Since 2011, In Memoriam 2014 has enabled communities to apply for their free SmartWater online see www.inmemoriam2014.org.

War Memorials Trust's Director, Frances Moreton, said: "War Memorials Trust condemns any damage to, or disrespect aimed at, our war memorials. This country should be proud of the excellent work undertaken by custodians, communities and individuals who care for our war memorials. The negative actions of a few should not deter from our pride in those who make a difference and ensure our war memorials continue to provide sites at which we can all pay our respects.

If you are concerned about a war memorial, or spot a problem, please contact War Memorials Trust for advice, providing pictures if you can. You can also get involved in conserving this unique aspect of the UK's heritage by submitting pictures and condition information to War Memorials Online, www.warmemorialsonline.org.uk. This will help build a greater understanding of the condition of our war memorials and make sure they are recorded so should the worst happen there is information to help identify stolen items or assist with repairs."

Notes to editors

1. For details of specific cases of theft and vandalism in each year please see the associated appendix for the relevant News releases or statements. Numbers of reported thefts and vandalism are based on cases reported directly to War Memorials Trust or those that it picks up from various media. There is no obligation for anyone to report theft and vandalism to War Memorials Trust and as such there may be other cases of which the charity is unaware.
2. In Memoriam 2014 is a partnership between DeterTech and War Memorials Trust. In Memoriam 2014 offers protection for war memorials at risk of theft or damage by enabling communities to mark them with a forensic liquid called SmartWater. The traceable liquid has a unique chemical composition and forensic code that can be applied so if memorials/features are stolen they can be returned to the scene of the crime. It is available free of charge to war memorial custodians. SmartWater is well known to criminals, who acknowledge that it represents a genuine threat to them as the product has had a 100% conviction rate in hundreds of cases. For further information please visit www.inmemoriam2014.org or www.warmemorials.org/im2014-press.
3. War Memorials Online is seeking to create a greater understanding of the condition of war memorials. Identifying war memorials in 'Poor' or 'Very bad' condition will help target resources at those memorials that need help. The public can also raise concerns through the website which are passed to War Memorials Trust to follow up. The map search on the website can be used to show war memorial condition in your local area, www.warmemorialsonline.org.uk/memorials.
